UK-KENYA RELATIONS: A JIMMY WANJIGI AND RAILA ODINGA PRESIDENCY

The Republic of Kenya is one of The United Kingdom's closest allies and strategic partners in Africa. Our relationship traces its journey from the late 19th century, to date. This analysis focuses on the upcoming general election, and the aftermath of a dangerous scheme hatched by an array of dirty financial titans in Kenya and abroad.

Jimmy Wanjigi and Raila Odinga.

Jimmy Wanjigi comes from one of Kenya's wealthiest families, and has set his sights on bringing down the government of President Uhuru Kenyatta. To attain his goal, he has put his financial muscle behind candidate Raila Odinga, and forced together a formidable coalition of tribal kingpins behind the National Alliance Super Coalition, whom he hopes will pull off a surprise victory on Election Day.

What is alarming, is the reasons behind Mr. Wanjigi's decision to influence this elections that has our security staff at the high commission in Nairobi deeply worried. Our intelligence services have been listening in on him, and his political and business associates in Kenya and outside, and has been able to piece together a rather bleak picture for Kenya and the East African frontline states. Mr. Wanjigi has strong armed Mr. Odinga into signing several agreements which will make him the de facto kingpin if the NASA Coalition wins the General Election. The following is a list of some of the most troubling ideas that this dangerous demagogue has up his sleeve.

Eastern European Connection

He has made a deal with Serbian and Russian actors to turn Kenya Defence Forces into an end user of military ammunition and equipment originating from Eastern Europe. He has devised a plan to privatize the Eldoret bullet factory and acquire a majority stake to produce Eastern European ammo. We suspect he wants to train and arm his own militia to use as leverage on Mr. Odinga if new President goes out of line.

We also know that this militia will be used to carry out attacks on British and Canadian oil companies operating in Lokichar area of Turkana County. If his plan succeeds and Tullow Oil and Africa Oil Corporation pull out, they will re-negotiate with oil companies from Asia. The Hydro carbon estimate from Southern Ethiopian to the Turkana region is roughly 23 billion barrels of crude, making it a hotspot for oil majors from across the globe.

Port of Mombasa.

Mr. Wanjigi has boxed the NASA leadership into signing a concession agreement to have the Port of Mombasa handed over to him and the family of Mombasa Governor Ali Hassan Joho for operational control. This is a dangerous move, because Governor Joho and his family are well known in the narcotics trade. The port city of Mombasa will become a center for drug trafficking, and the impact on our citizens will be catastrophic, where over 200,000 of our nationals' vacation annually.

Withdrawal of BATUK from Laikipia Air Base and Kahawa Garisson, and the US Military from Manda Naval Bay.

Our intelligence officers have captured conversations between Mr. Wanjigi and his Eastern European criminal associates with the latter assuring them that British Army Training Unit in Kenya, and The United States Military will be withdrawn from Kenyan soil. His main gripe with the US and the UK, stem from a travel ban imposed on him and his family ten years ago for his role in the Anglo Leasing scandal where the Republic of Kenya lost colossal amounts of money.

The withdrawal of British army will be a precursor for violent land invasions in the areas surrounding the Laikipia Air Base, where our troops are stationed, while 95% of the targeted land is owned by our nationals. Mr. Odinga was recently captured on local media calling for the 'dismantling of the white owned lands'. Mr. Wanjigi is financing the local NASA leaders, who in turn send the money via MPESA mobile payments to the local tribal militia who are orchestrating the violent attacks. If the security situation deteriorates further, we have drawn up a robust action plan to protect our citizens from these marauding thugs.

We can also report that Jimmy Wanjigi has been responsible for flying in to Kenya several Chinese hackers to access security installations, the country's electoral body, and other vital government agencies. These criminal elements are part of the Chinese Triad Mafia Organization that has set up shop in Kenya. With this kind of associates working with Mr. Wanjigi, this country is on the verge of becoming the center for money laundering and trans-national crime, and a haven for international criminal networks.

Raila Odinga is an unsettled old man trying to achieve his father's dreams and aspirations. This has also been a lifelong burden. That he has accepted to be manipulated by a corrupt and wily business man to achieve his ambition of being president of Kenya goes to elaborate how desperate he has become. Unbridled greed coupled with new found access to power will make Jimmy Wanjigi a dangerous man. He once slapped a former Interior Minister, for delaying an over inflated payment for substandard equipment he had delivered to that ministry.

These circumstances have forced us to re assess our views on Mr. Odinga. He does not have the gravitas to execute the leadership required to run the country. We will maintain our faith in President Kenyatta. This was underscored by the visit earlier this summer to the United Kingdom, and the vote of confidence he got from Prime Minister Theresa May at No. 10 Downing Street, and the Duke of Cambridge, Prince William, at Buckingham Palace. Mr. Kenyatta has successfully turned Kenya into a vibrant international business hub, with the United Kingdom being the second largest foreign investor in the country. We will continue to liaise with our American and European Union partners by staying engaged with the Government of President Kenyatta, especially in the post-election period when he will need our unequivocal support.
